

Fountaine Pajot Athena 38

Though the Athena 38 is one of Fountaine-Pajot's smallest in their five-cat line, they succeeded in designing a smaller catamaran while preserving the state-of-the-art creature comforts their larger cats are known for. This newly constructed design embraces new technology and groundwork from foregoing and evolving generations of the big cruising cats. Her light weight and powerful rig will ensure a good turn of speed under sail, and her twin engines help her maneuver in tight spaces. She is easy to sail and virtually unsinkable.

The symmetrical layout of her four well lit cabins provide adequate privacy for up to 4 couples. One roomy head is strategically located between the two doubles in each corridor, each with built-in showers. One model comes with two optional single v-berths which provide additional sleeping space for a captain or small children, increasing the maximum capacity to ten people. Each cabin is well-lit and ventilated with hatches, fans and reading lights.

The salon area includes a modern galley and serving counter which comes fully-stocked with all necessary culinary hardware to prepare and serve meals, as well as a comfortable lounge area with dining table and navigation station all set in a sweeping arc pattern. This spacious area is well-ventilated and lit from two large opening hatches, spot lamps, background lighting and fans.

The helmsman's cockpit is not only functional for navigation and spacious for sun bathing but her convenient steps at the rear of the floats provide the best possible access for all kinds of recreation in the water. The deck layout facilitates simple and safe sail handling and free view for the helmsman. The 10-foot-wide deck offers comfortable bench seating rimming most of the area, comfortably accommodating 12. The triangular-shaped table in the port corner of the deck is out of the way and can comfortably seat 6 people for moonlit al fresco dining.

An RIB tender with 9.9hp outboard as well as autopilot, speed, depth and wind indicator are some additional amenities to enhance your sail.
